

1. Did anyone have a significant moment during any portion of Sunday's service?
2. Have someone read Psalm 139.
As Brother Worley put it, this psalm lets us eavesdrop on David the Psalmist's "self-talk"—the subconscious playlist or echo chamber of thoughts that influence how we see God, ourselves, and others. How does this psalm reflect (or not reflect) the self-talk you hear in your own thoughts? What verses do you want to become more prominent in your thought life?
3. Throughout his message, titled "Learning to Be Present to the Presence of God," Brother Worley shared that "God wants our attention not to condemn or inform us but to make us whole and holy." Yet, "paying attention is costly." In what ways can you give God more attention this week? From what distractions would you need to withdraw your attention in order to give God more?
